YELM GRAD GOES FROM YEARBOOK CLASS TO SENIOR DESIGNER AT STARBUCKS

Jamie Jones Dreams of Becoming a Film Director After Early Success as a Graphic Designer

By Paul Dunn
Nisqually Valley News

When the Nisqually Valley News caught up with Robyn Fisher via email last week she was lounging on the beach in Maui ... while the rest of us, well, weren't.

But that's OK.

As it turns out, Maui's home to both of Fisher's siblings, so the 56-year-old divides her time between the island paradise and the Pacific Northwest where her three children reside.

And it's the youngest of her trio of kids around whom this tale spins.

Her name is Jamie Jones.

Jones, 26, graduated from Yelm High School in 2012 and is now a senior graphic designer at Starbucks Coffee Company in Seattle. In a roundabout, but pretty substantial way, Jones can thank Mom for her current position and her unbridled passion for graphic design.

Fisher, you see, taught English-related courses at Yelm High School from 2004 to 2016 – and for three years supervised her daughter in the school's yearbook class, for which Jones was design editor.

So who better than Mom to offer a bit of insight about her design-wizard daughter?

Recalled Fisher: "Jamie was very driven, and I could always count on her and the class could always count on her. Maybe she worked harder because I was her mom, but I doubt it. She cared about the book being excellent."

Jones remembers it a little differently: "It was kind of weird and fun at the same time in her class. I could get away with goofing off sometimes because I was the design editor and I worked really hard. She kind of got me first interested in the yearbook class."

Starbucks Coffee Company Senior Designer Jamie Jones holds four holiday-themed coffee cups that she and a colleague recently created. Jones was photographed near her apartment in Seattle.

Before her yearbook catharsis, Jones had set her eyes on becoming a pediatrician, though she struggled through her science classes. So along came yearbook, and her yearning for the medical profession vanished like a snowman in Palm Springs.

"Once I got on the yearbook staff and recognized I was good at it, I realized that there were job opportunities in design and art as a profession which I hadn't thought of before as a viable career path," Jones said last week in a phone interview.

And when the yearbook class's first hard-copy book appeared, it cemented Jones' immediate career aspirations.

"I could see all the skill we had put into creating this book, and it was a magical moment for me," Jones said. "I realized I had this specific skill that could open a career path for me, and it was something I really, really enjoyed – which was a bonus."

After completing the Running Start program at Sound Puget Sound Community College during her junior and senior years at YHS – while managing to play soccer and remain on the yearbook staff – Jones set her sights on earning a university design degree.

That landed her at Western Washington University in Bellingham where in 2015 she emerged with her coveted bachelor's of fine arts degree in graphic design. And though she'd gained a broad breadth of design knowledge at the university, her confidence at that point had yet to catch up with her diploma.

"I felt like I had an imposter syndrome after WWU, because I just didn't really feel like I could own the title of being a designer yet," she said.

So she did what seemed most logical: She moved to Seattle.

"I knew there were not a lot of design jobs outside of big cities, and I wanted the opportunity to live in Seattle," she said.

Before long she'd landed her first honest-to-goodness graphic design job at Electric Pen, a small Seattle firm specializing in branding, website design and marketing. She stayed there for two years until June 2017 when she took a big gulp and knocked on the Big Kahuna's door: Starbucks Coffee Company.

And lo and behold, she was hired – and suddenly became a tiny cog in a huge, international machine. She was thrilled.

"I was so excited when I got the job at Starbucks," Jones said. "It was a very affirming moment for me, because I would be working on high-visibility projects. I'd always looked up to the work Starbucks was doing, and it just felt like a really big deal at the time."

Jones began her Starbucks career as a merchandise designer, branched out into social media digital design and before long was involved in all sorts of projects. Then, in December 2019, the company promoted her to senior designer. Now she's more involved with film, television commercials, and this time of year seasonal promotions for which she helps create visual concepts. It's a complex process.

"There are just just a million little pieces that need to be designed that the whole team does," she explained.

Starbucks designer Taylor Mattson is among Jones' colleagues and has been working on the company's holiday campaign with her. Over the three years she and Jones have collaborated, the pair have also worked together on social media, gift cards and a variety of smaller studio projects.

Mattson lauds Jones' talent and camaraderie.

"Jamie is such a talented designer and artist, and both in and out of our day job she creates such beautiful work," said Mattson, 27, who has worked at Starbucks for four years. "Being great friends outside of work and collaborating with her in the studio is such a fun opportunity. She's really passionate about her career, and it shows in her work."

These days, Jones' passion often focuses on the film side of her job, though she's also been digitally illustrating for the past couple of years.

"I really enjoy film," she said, noting the process requires much conceptualization and story-boarding. "Creating the film is always a really exciting and rewarding process."

But though she loves her job, it's not all hearts and flowers. The Kahuna's cogs turn slowly at times.

"There are always challenges working with such a big corporation regarding art," Jones said. "There are a lot of cooks in the kitchen, and there are a lot of different levels the design work has to go through to get approved."

Typically, Jones said, a project can easily take a month to six months from initial design to finished project before it's ready to roll out to the public.

"It definitely gets frustrating going through that many edits and having to re-concept a lot," she said. "I have learned to really pick my battles now, because in the beginning of my career I got heavily affected because I took everything personally. Now I can separate myself from it if I get feedback that's not positive."

Fisher has watched these traits develop in her daughter over the years, but they may have begun germinating during YHS yearbook class.

"Yearbook class was more like a job than a class," said Fisher, who left YHS in 2016 to care for her ailing husband, who died of Lewy Body Dementia in 2017. "I cared deeply about all of my students, and I pushed them to be as professional and skilled as possible ... and they learned they were capable of so much more than they knew."

Those attributes have no doubt been tested anew over the past 10 months as the coronavirus pandemic plunged the world into chaos.

Jones – who has been working from home since March – feels "very blessed" to still have a job, but has struggled with the deprivations the pandemic has obliged, such as not being able to see her co-workers in person.

"I definitely have struggled with my fair share of feeling depressed and anxious through this whole situation," she said. "Living in Seattle you see more of the effects of it just because there are more people around you and it makes it easier to be nervous and scared. I feel like I've adjusted to it pretty well, though at this point I'm just ready for it to be over."

The pandemic, though, has offered Jones "a lot of time for reflection" about what her future might hold.

"I want to be a creative director in some capacity," said Jones, who lives with her boyfriend, a Starbucks photographer. "I've been learning more about film and doing my own projects, so right now my dream is to be a film director for music videos or commercials."

But when she's not head over heels inside a design project, Jones has a few ways to unwind. She loves to cook, practice Yoga and do some of her own illustrations.

And maybe by the time the pandemic ends she'll plan a little trip to Maui.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've known my friend "Ashley" for a lot of years. She is single. Several years ago, I introduced her to another couple, the "Smiths." We all have a lot in common and take turns inviting each other for dinner. This group and a couple of other couples are the only people in my social circle I have seen periodically during this pandemic.

Two weeks ago, Ashley invited my husband and me and the Smiths for dinner. Three days before the dinner, Ashley sent me a text that the Smiths will be bringing another couple, and she wanted to be sure it was OK with us. I called her immediately and told her that with the spike in COVID cases, I wasn't comfortable having a close dinner with a couple who wasn't in my social circle. She said she was "sorry," meaning if I didn't like it, my husband and I could stay home.

I'm extremely hurt and angry and am losing sleep over this. I feel Ashley should have asked us BEFORE adding this other couple to our dinner. I feel like sending her a letter saying that no friend should treat another friend like this, that I guess she's not really a friend and end the relationship. My husband is stopping me from sending such a letter. Am I overreacting? — ANGRY IN OREGON

DEAR ANGRY: Yes, you are. You have blown this out of proportion. Be glad you have a husband who advised you as he did. Ashley did the right thing by telling you the guest list for the dinner had grown so you could opt out if you wished. Because she was the host, she was not obligated to ask permission to include the extras.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a truck driver who is on the road for weeks at a time. My girlfriend got a new job and is working every day. On the weekends she goes out to bars.

I feel jealous because I'm working and even when I can get a weekend to be with her, she doesn't want to be intimate. Also she promises to call me but rarely does. Should I just end it? I've been married twice and thought we would be a couple and marry. I don't know what I should do. — ON THE ROAD

DEAR ON THE ROAD: Allow me to steer you in the right direction. You are apart from this woman weeks at a time, and when you do manage to be together, she isn't interested in intimacy. After promising to stay in closer touch with you, she fails to follow through. This should tell you that when you're out of sight, you're not on her mind.

Take the hint. End the "romance" — what little there is of it. Then thank your lucky stars she isn't your wife, and you're not heading to divorce court for a third time.

DEAR ABBY: I am a stepgrandma whose 4-year-old grandson desperately needs a haircut. Is it OK for Santa to get him a gift card for a haircut? — CLEAN CUT IN FLORIDA

DEAR CLEAN CUT: The child's parents may like their son's hair the way it is. If the reason they are leaving it long is financial, a gift card might be appreciated. However, if that's not the case, your gesture would be interpreted as judgmental, and it would not be appreciated.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine has recently discovered that her husband of 40-plus years has been hiding a decades-long porn addiction. The discovery has caused a problem in their marriage. They have had counseling.

He says he wants to save their marriage and has vowed to give up the porn. I was told he told his wife that if she decides to divorce him, he will tell the entire family and their children that SHE was the one addicted to porn, and it is the reason he's divorcing her. My question is, what kind of person would treat his wife this way and think this is an appropriate way to save the marriage? — TWISTED IN KENTUCKY

DEAR TWISTED: Unfortunately, the husband has a problem greater than his porn addiction. It's his lack of character and honesty. His threat is not only inappropriate, but also a valid reason to end the marriage.

P.S. I can't imagine why her family would buy that lie.

DEAR ABBY: In 1972, when I was 12, my father died by suicide. I was told it was an accident. I was given an explanation, but the facts didn't add up. I suspected it was suicide. In 1998, my brother also died by suicide. Afterward, I asked Mom if Dad had done it, too. She denied it, but I knew better.

Around the time of my brother's death, I lost my best friend/co-worker/father figure of 17 years to suicide. His son was told his dad had had a heart attack. He is now a father in his 40s, and I think he deserves to know. Should I remain silent as I have for more than 20 years? — IN A MORAL DILEMMA

DEAR DILEMMA: Years ago, when a family member died by suicide, it was considered shameful and kept a family secret. Because depression can run in families, these kinds of secrets can be harmful. Today we know more, and there are programs available to help families who have suffered this kind of tragic loss. The National Suicide Prevention Lifeline (800-273-8255) offers support to surviving family members.

I do think you should talk to your friend's son. Introduce the topic by telling him what happened in your family, how much his father meant to you and your concern for him and his own family, which is why you are bringing it up now.

DEAR ABBY: It's not the first time, but certainly will be the last time I'm invited to a close friend's house without my baby girl, my 12-year-old retired therapy dog, "Lady." Everyone loves Lady. So does my friend. (I even have her portrait tattooed on my leg.) Is it rude to not want to visit my friend because Lady is not welcome? — LOVES MY LADY

DEAR LOVES: It's not rude. It is a choice. What I DO think is rude is attempting to blackmail someone into allowing a loved, but unwanted, pet into their home knowing it isn't welcome. If Lady were still a therapy dog, I might feel differently, but Lady is now retired, and her presence is no longer a medical necessity.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 19 years now. A few years back, I came to know about my husband's platonic relationship with his old girlfriend. She lives in a different state and is married.

My husband has long chats with her every day about everything, including our sex life. I confronted him and asked him to end their relationship because knowing that he wants me to do something in bed because his friend does it bothers me a lot. He promised at the time that he wouldn't talk or chat with her anymore, and I trusted him.

A few weeks ago, I discovered that he still chats with her every day, and he changed her name in his contact list to hide his relationship. I feel cheated on, and I want to end this marriage. Please help me. I don't want to make a wrong step. — BETRAYED IN FLORIDA

DEAR BETRAYED: A couple's sex life is supposed to be private. Your husband and his supposedly platonic "friend" have both betrayed the trust of their spouses. That he would expect you to do something in bed that he knows she is doing is substituting your body for hers, and frankly, it strikes me as another form of cheating. Obscuring her name in his contact file illustrates that he has no intention of ending their relationship.

You feel cheated on because you HAVE been cheated on. It will continue as long as you allow it. Because you're afraid you will take a wrong step, start quietly gathering all the financial information you can and talk with several lawyers before deciding which one will work hardest to protect your interests and proceed from there.

'Call Me Kat' pulls through COVID to premiere on Fox

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

After a trying year, most people are probably ready for a few laughs. Luckily, a new comedy has navigated the tricky waters of filming during the COVID-19 pandemic to bring a little lighthearted fun back to prime time, and it stars a familiar fan favorite.

Mayim Bialik ("The Big Bang Theory") stars as Kat, a thirtysomething woman who leaves her job as a math teacher to open a cat cafe in "Call Me Kat," premiering Sunday, Jan. 3, on Fox. Inspired by the British BBC series "Miranda," the pilot received a series order from Fox in May 2020 and producers had to figure out how to get the production up and running safely after the COVID-19 pandemic forced an industry-wide shutdown. And it seems they found a way, because that is exactly what they did.

Bialik even chronicled her first day on set in a YouTube video on her official channel. She showed fans exactly what filming in the era of COVID-19 involves as she gave them a sneak peek at the new series. In the video, posted on Friday, Oct. 30, she started off by explaining that she had to show up to work in a mask and answer a series of questions, just like everybody else – no preferential "star" treatment there. As she panned around her dressing room, she showed off her wipes, gloves and hand sanitizer, even later showing viewers the podium by her chair on set where she keeps her mask.

She also talked about some of the challenges they were facing while trying to bring a little laughter into people's lives.

"Typically, we film with a live studio audience and, because of COVID, we cannot," Bialik said in the YouTube video. "So, essentially, we're filming like it's a little movie, which means we film all day." She continued by explaining why that was difficult.

"A lot of sitcom acting is dependent on timing, based on laughs and based on what works for the audience, so it's definitely a new way of learning to do this kind of comedy," she said.

Still, she and the rest of the cast and crew persevered to bring TV viewers the story of a modern woman forging ahead with her life plan, determined to be happy despite being single.

In the show, Kat struggles to prove to her mother, Sheila (Swoosie Kurtz, "Mike & Molly"), that she can live a fulfilling life without having every little thing that she wants. She takes the money her parents had been saving for her wedding and sinks it into the cafe, where she works alongside millennial Randi (Kyla Pratt, "Doctor Dolittle," 1998), a self-proclaimed non-cat person. Kat also enlists the services of Phil (Leslie Jordan, "The Cool Kids") to make all of the pastries she sells at the cafe. As Kat celebrates her independence, Phil deals with the fallout of recently breaking up with his longtime partner. Kat also has the support of her best friend, Tara (Vanessa Lachey, "Truth Be Told"), whose life as a wife and mother looks very different from her own.

However, as often happens in sitcoms, a wrench is soon thrown into Kat's seemingly perfect, happy single life. Her former crush, Max (Cheyenne Jackson, "American Horror Story"), reappears on the scene and lands a job as a bartender at the piano bar across from the cafe, where he works with his friend Carter (Julian Grant, "Key and Peele").

Although based on the 2009 BBC U.K. hit "Miranda," starring Miranda Hart ("Call the Midwife"), the quirky premise has been tweaked slightly for American audiences. For example, while Kat runs a cat cafe in "Call Me Kat," Miranda ran a joke shop and boutique. While odd duck Miranda didn't seem to fit in with her old boarding school chums, Kat appears to have some genuinely close friends. In a June interview with Metro.co.uk, Bialik joked about the U.S. production, saying: "We've definitely Americanized it. We're not as funny as you are over there, but we are doing our best."

The "we" Bialik is referring to includes an old pal who knows a thing or two about what makes American audiences laugh. She teamed up with former fellow "The Big Bang Theory" star Jim Parsons, who serves as an executive producer for "Call Me Kat" alongside Bialik, Hart, Todd Spiewak ("Young Sheldon"), Darlene Hunt ("The Big C") and Angie Stephenson ("The Night Of").

Mayim Bialik stars in "Call Me Kat"

With such a stellar team both in front of the camera and behind the scenes, it's no wonder Fox has confidence in the series. The network has given "Call Me Kat" a prime premiere time-slot after the NFL's Sunday doubleheader – that could lead to a nice ratings boost for the fledgling series, and there's even more good news for people who like the series and its stars. Viewers won't even have to wait a full week for more of the sitcom, as it also airs on Fox on Thursday, Jan. 7, in what will be its regular time-slot. It will serve as the lead-in for the final season of the Tim Allen ("Home Improvement")-led sitcom "Last Man Standing."

Don't miss the series premiere of "Call Me Kat," airing Sunday, Jan. 3, on Fox.

Paul Rudd stars in "Our Idiot Brother"

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

"Our Idiot Brother" (2011)

Every family has the wild card. This holiday season, join the Rochlins as they learn to live with theirs in "Our Idiot Brother," coming to Hulu on Monday, Dec. 28. Happy-go-lucky Ned Rochlin (Paul Rudd, "I Love You, Man," 2009) was enjoying his life growing organic vegetables on a farm alongside his bohemian girlfriend and dog, Willie Nelson. But when an unfortunate farmers market incident occurs, involving illegal marijuana and a uniformed police officer, Ned finds himself arrested on drug charges. With nowhere else to go when he is released from jail, Ned moves in with his sisters – played by Zooey Deschanel ("New Girl"), Elizabeth Banks ("The Hunger Games," 2012) and Emily Mortimer ("Match Point," 2005) – and promptly begins to (accidentally) ruin their lives. Even when it seems his heart is in the right place, there is no denying that Ned has a knack for disappointment and disaster. Despite his exposing family secrets, continued illegal actions and, at times, causing actual physical injury, Ned's sisters must learn to love the good in their brother – even if it might prove to be the hardest thing in the world to do. From writer/director Jesse Peretz ("Girls"), this laugh-out-loud comedy also stars Rashida Jones ("Parks and Recreation"), Steve Coogan ("Philomena," 2013) and Kathryn Hahn ("Bad Moms," 2016).

"American Animals" (2018)

As explicitly stated by its trailer, this film "is not based on a true story – this happened." Tune into Hulu on Sunday, Dec. 27, to watch the true story of the "American Animals." Enamored with heist films like "Ocean's Eleven" (2001) and "The Thomas Crown Affair" (1999), a group of four college students organized themselves to perform possibly the most unsuccessful art heist in history. Determined to steal near-priceless books – four double-sized volumes of John James Audubon's "Birds of America" – from Transylvania University's Special Collections Library, Spencer Reinhard (portrayed by Barry Keoghan, "The Killing of a Sacred Deer," 2017), Warren Lipka (portrayed by Evan Peters, "X-Men: Dark Phoenix," 2019), Eric Borsuk (portrayed by Jared Abrahamson, "Fear the Walking Dead") and Chas Allen (portrayed by Blake Jenner, "Glee") dressed up in poorly executed old-man costumes and began their plan. Tied together by interviews with the real-life thieves and the then fifty-something-year-old librarian they terrorized in the process, Betty Jane "B.J." Gooch (played in the re-enactment by Ann Dowd, "Hereditary," 2018), this film is a unique take on a piece of the disappointing personal history of four Kentucky students in 2004. Directed and co-written by Bart Layton ("Paranormal Witness"), this comical heist was adapted for the screen by Clauda Zie ("The Indestructibles").

"Bayou Caviar" (2018)

Eastern Europe meets the southern States in "Bayou Caviar," coming to Hulu on Thursday, Dec. 31. Featuring Cuba Gooding Jr. ("Jerry Maguire," 1996) in his directorial debut, "Bayou Caviar" tells the story of former boxing champion Rodney Jones (Gooding Jr.) as his new life as a nightclub bouncer goes from mundane to high-octane in a matter of seconds. While at a rather uncouth business meeting, Jones is witness to a crime and is pulled deep into working with the Russian mafia who has taken over the nightclub. Now with a job he never thought he'd have (and quite frankly never wanted), Jones teams up with a brusque photographer (Famke Janssen, "X-Men," 2000) and an aspiring star (Lia Marie Johnson, "The Thinning," 2016) to catch a wealthy real estate mogul (Gregg Bello, " Mother!," 2017) in a compromising situation per the Russians' directives … or else. This thrilling slow-burn also stars former American Idol runner-up Katharine McPhee ("The House Bunny," 2008) and American legend Richard Dreyfuss ("Jaws," 1975).

Cuba Gooding Jr. and Famke Janssen in "Bayou Caviar"

"The Young Victoria" (2009)

While the queen prepares to rule her country, who is it who rules the ruler? Follow a young Queen of England to the throne with "The Young Victoria," available now on Hulu. Constantly chastised by her controlling mother and uncles for holding her own opinions, young Victoria (Emily Blunt, "The Devil Wears Prada," 2006) – the future Queen of England – prepares herself to take the crown when her time comes. Dreaming since childhood of the moment when she might reign over her country, Victoria had never been properly groomed for the position as her family seemed to have other plans in mind. Despite a flurry of "respectable" young suitors to rule for her rather than alongside her, Victoria finds herself falling for her German cousin Prince Albert (Rupert Friend, "Pride & Prejudice," 2005) who is more supportive of her than anyone she has ever known. By her side from her ascension, Albert watched and helped to fortify Victoria as she became one of England's most fearless and respected leaders. Snagging an Academy Award for Best Achievement in Costume Design, this Jean-Marc Vallée- ("Dallas Buyers Club") directed biopic also stars Miranda Richardson ("The Hours," 2002), Harriet Walter ("Atonement," 2007) and Paul Bettany ("A Knight's Tale," 2001).

Emily Blunt as seen in "The Young Victoria"

Black Panther

TNT 5:05 p.m.

Chadwick Boseman stars as T'Challa, ruler of the hidden kingdom of Wakanda, and its hero, Black Panther. When T'Challa's homeland is threatened by the outside world, he and his people fight to stop a war. Michael B. Jordan and Lupita Nyong'o also star.

MacGyver

KIRO 8:00 p.m.

Mac (Lucas Till) and Desi (Levy Tran) are thrust into a new case when they witness a murder at a restaurant while on a double date in this rebroadcast. While they try to find the killer, Riley (Tristin Mays) tries to keep a secret from her new boyfriend.

Levy Tran and Lucas Till in "MacGyver"

Rick and Morty

TOON 10:00 p.m.

When Summer gets a new job working for the devil (obviously) at a thrift shop selling (obviously) cursed items, Rick invents a device to nullify the objects' negative effects. Meanwhile, Jerry still believes Pluto is a planet - it's not (obviously).

The Karate Kid

AMC 11:45 p.m.

AMC presents back-to-back '80s classics with a special broadcast of this film and its sequel. Ralph Macchio stars as Daniel, a teenager who is tormented by bullies before he makes the decision to learn karate from a martial arts master (Pat Morita).

Fast Times at Ridgemont High

SHOW Noon

This 1982 coming-of-age comedy classic from director Amy Heckerling follows the exploits of teens over a year of high school. Jennifer Jason Leigh, Sean Penn, Brian Backer, Nicolas Cage and Phoebe Cates star as students facing off against various foes.

Ocean's Eleven

TBS 1:00 p.m.

Tune in for this heist trilogy starring Matt Damon, Brad Pitt, George Clooney, Don Cheadle and more. A con man pulls together a rag-tag group of high-profile thieves to attempt to pull off a massive heist by robbing three Las Vegas casinos simultaneously.

Neil deGrasse Tyson hosts "Cosmos: Possible Worlds"

Lethal Weapon

AMC 3:00 p.m.

AMC offers action fans an epic four-movie marathon of this film franchise starring Mel Gibson and Danny Glover. An unstable police officer is paired with a conservative family man and they soon find themselves battling drug dealers. Gary Busey also stars.

Cosmos: Possible Worlds

KCPQ 11:00 p.m.

Join Neil deGrasse Tyson as he explores worlds beyond our own throughout the course of this hit miniseries. In this re-broadcast, deGrasse Tyson and other scientists investigate how the collision of two atoms long ago changed the world forever.

"Hope Gap" (2020)

Find your happiness this holiday season when "Hope Gap" joins the Prime roster on Monday, Dec. 28. Home for a visit with his parents, Grace (Annette Bening, "Life Itself," 2018) and Edward (Bill Nighy, "Love Actually," 2003), Jamie's (Josh O'Connor, "The Crown") trip takes a turn for the worse when his father announces that he plans to leave his mother after 29 years of marriage. Based on the William Nicholson stage play "The Retreat from Moscow" and adapted for the screen by the playwright himself, "Hope Gap" first premiered at the Toronto International Film Festival in September 2019 and was released to the U.K. and worldwide this past summer. This raw and emotionally charged look at the complexities of falling out of love after three decades together was also directed by Nicholson and features appearances by Aiysha Hart ("Atlantis"), Sally Rogers ("Little Britain"), Ryan McKen ("Temple") and introduces Joe Citro ("Holby City") in his feature film premiere as young Jamie.

"The House Sitter" (2016)

Whether invited or not, some guests just really don't know when to leave. Make yourself at home with "The House Sitter," coming to Prime on Sunday, Dec. 27. Working as a professional house sitter and, as a result, having no home of her own, Rebecca's (Ashley Dulaney, "Babysitter's Black Book," 2015) life is turned upside down when Sara Lawrence (Kate Ashfield, "Shaun of the Dead," 2004) calls to inform her that the family will be coming home early from vacation and no longer requires her services. As Rebecca now scrambles to find another home in time to leave, the Lawrences offer her to stay as their guest until she can find something else. Little do they know, Rebecca has plans of her own – and they don't involve leaving. Written by TV-movie master Marcy Holland ("Trailer Park Shark," 2017) and directed by Jim Issa ("Good Intentions," 2010), this unsettling thriller about an obsession to belong also stars Sean O'Bryan ("Olympus Has Fallen," 2013) as Sara's husband, Kyle Lawrence, and Shelby Young ("The Social Network," 2010) as the Lawrences' daughter, Amy.

Colin Firth and Helena Bonham Carter in "The King's Speech"

"Supervized" (2019)

Retirement is a big transition that requires a lot of adjustment, especially when one of those adjustments includes losing your … superpowers? Switch over to Prime on Thursday, Dec. 31, and ring in the new year with the quirky comedy "Supervized." Meet the aging heroes who put the "super" in "superfluous" as they band together for one last hurrah. Ray, aka Maximum Justice (Tom Berenger, "Inception," 2010), Ted, aka Shimmy (Beau Bridges, "Masters of Sex"), Madera, aka Madera Moonlight (Fionnula Flanagan, "The Others," 2001), and Pendle, aka Total Thunder (Louis Gossett Jr., "Watchman"), abandon the regulated boredom of the Dunmanor retirement home in Ireland and return to their old lives as some of the world's greatest superheroes to fight against the staff members out to steal their powers. Released worldwide in 2019, this film directed by Steve Barron ("The Durrells in Corfu") also stars Fiona Glascott ("Brooklyn," 2015), Hiran Abeysekera ("Find Me in Paris"), Elya Baskin ("Spider-Man 2," 2004) and Ned Dennehy ("Peeky Blinders").

Tom Berenger stars in "Supervized"

"The King's Speech" (2010)

Join the King of England on a royal journey to discover his voice with "The King's Speech," available now on Prime. Suffering from an imposing stutter that shakes his confidence, undermines his authority and makes him difficult to understand when speaking into a microphone, King George VI (Colin Firth, "A Single Man," 2009) is required to make a public address to his people following his 1936 ascension and the outbreak of World War II. Knowing full well that no speech therapist has yet been able to help him, Queen Elizabeth (Helena Bonham Carter, "Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber of Fleet Street," 2007), the king's wife, hires a new therapist (Geoffrey Rush, "Shakespeare in Love," 1998), known for his controversial methods, who promises to cure the king so long as he gets the full trust and support of the royal couple. Nominated for a remarkable 205 awards worldwide and the winner of four Academy Awards (including Best Motion Picture of the Year for 2010), this British historical biopic was directed by Tom Hooper ("The Danish Girl," 2015) and features a beautiful score composed by two-time Oscar-winner Alexandre Desplat ("The Shape of Water," 2017).

NCIS: New Orleans

KIRO 9:00 p.m.

New Orleans may be known as a party town, but Special Agent Dwayne Pride (Scott Bakula) and his team take their work very seriously. This drama follows a team of experts as they investigate crimes involving military personnel. C.C.H. Pounder also stars.

The Rookie

KOMO 10:00 p.m.

Nathan Fillion returns as single father John Nolan in this Season 3 premiere. A drastic career change into law enforcement at the age of 45 makes him the LAPD's oldest rookie. Last season ended on a cliffhanger as Nolan realized he was being framed.

The Price Is Right

KIRO 8:00 p.m.

Tune in for a special new "At Night" episode of this classic game show. Hosted by comedian Drew Carey, this installment features special guests who must guess the value of everyday (and a few not-so-everyday) items in order to win fabulous prizes.

The Masked Dancer

KCPQ 8:00 p.m.

Hosted by Craig Robinson, with Ken Jeong, Paula Abdul, Brian Austin Green and Ashley Tisdale acting as panelists, this fun new competition series features disguised celebrities dancing with masked partners. The panelists must guess the celebs' identities.

Drew Carey hosts "The Price is Right"

Chicago P.D.

KING 10:00 p.m.

In this hit procedural drama, Hank Voight (Jason Beghe) leads an elite team of cops that includes former Army ranger Jay Halstead (Jesse Lee Soffer), rookie officer Adam Ruzek (Patrick John Flueger) and recently-promoted Kevin Atwater (LaRoyce Hawkins).

The Longest Yard

AMC 11:00 p.m.

When disgraced football star Paul Crewe (Adam Sandler) is incarcerated for drunk driving, he reluctantly assembles a rag-tag team of inmates to challenge the guards' football team. Chris Rock and Nelly also star in this 1970s sports-comedy remake.

Celebrity Wheel of Fortune

KOMO 8:00 p.m.

The original superstars of this classic game show - Pat Sajak and Vanna White - return for this star-studded installment. Celebrities spin the wheel and play for a massive million-dollar prize that will be donated to their favorite charity organization.

Mr. Mayor

KING 8:00 p.m.

Ted Danson stars as Neil Bremer, a businessman who runs for L.A. mayor just to prove he can in this premiere. When Bremer wins, he must figure out what he stands for, all while dealing with his teenage daughter and an out-of-control coyote population.

"Mr. Mayor" star Ted Danson

Go-Big Show

TBS 9:00 p.m.

It doesn't get more extreme than this premiering series, which features superstar celebrities, monster trucks, alligator trainers, stuntmen and more. A talent show on high-octane gasoline, daring competitors face a panel of judges for a $100,000 prize.

Star Trek: Discovery

KIRO 10:00 p.m.

Set 10 years before the events depicted in the iconic original Star Trek series, this show follows the adventures of the USS Discovery's crew during the cold war between the Federation and the Klingons. Sonequa Martin-Green and Doug Jones star.

"Chilling Adventures of Sabrina" Season 4

This Thursday, Dec. 31, get ready for more than just a new year as Season 4 of "Chilling Adventures of Sabrina" premieres on Netflix. In the wake of a full moon the night before, this Thursday marks the perfect day to launch the fourth and final season of the streamer's hit teen horror-drama. Featuring a total of eight episodes like Season 3, the last chapter will follow the eponymous half-witch/half-mortal teenager (Kiernan Shipka, "Mad Men") as she faces the most harrowing threats of her young – albeit experienced and magical – life to date. This time focused on the Eldritch Terrors that were released onto Greendale by none other than Faustus Blackwood (Richard Coyle, "Grabbers," 2012) himself, Sabrina will once again have to team up with the coven in order to stop all hell from breaking loose (nope, not really an exaggeration in this case). Each episode will last an hour (as is tradition for the show) as the team fights each new creature one-by-one until finally faced with The Void – and, yes, we assure you it is as terrifying as it sounds. With her aunts Hilda (Lucy Davis, "Shaun of the Dead," 2004) and Zelda (Miranda Otto, "War of the Worlds," 2005), her cousin Ambrose (Chance Perdomo, "The Art of Trying," 2017) and her mortal friends, Rosalind (Jaz Sinclair, "Easy"), Theo (Lachlan Watson, "The Ultimate Life," 2013) and Harvey (Ross Lynch, "My Friend Dahmer," 2017), by her side as the other realm wages war on Earth, we will all soon learn how the Book of Spellman draws to a close. Created by Roberto Aguirre-Sacasa ("Carrie," 2013), Season 4 will also see the return of Nick (Gavin Leatherwood, "Bad Therapy," 2020), Prudence (Tati Gabrielle, "The 100"), Mary Wardwell (Michelle Gomez, "Doctor Who") and Lucifer Morningstar (Luke Cook, "Katy Keene").

"We Can Be Heroes" (2020)

You know what they say, "New year, new you," right? Well, in 2021, why not join a rag-tag team of children on a mission to save the world in "We Can Be Heroes," coming Friday, Jan. 1, to Netflix. From writer/director Robert Rodriguez, the creator of "The Adventures of Sharkboy and Lavagirl in 3-D" (2005) and the Spy Kids franchise, this new film centers around an unlikely and heroic coming-of-age story. When aliens descend to Earth and kidnap the planet's superheroes, their kids are taken into government custody in a secret location. Determined to save their parents – and the world – Missy Moreno (YaYa Gosselin, "FBI: Most Wanted") rallies the rest of the kids to escape their eerie government babysitter (Priyanka Chopra, "Quantico") and use their individual powers to get their parents back. Also starring Boyd Holbrook and Pedro Pascal of "Narcos," Christian Slater ("Mr. Robot") and Taylor Dooley ("The Adventures of Sharkboy and Lavagirl 3-D," 2005), this fun family film features a slew of young actors building their careers, including Vivien Lyra Blair ("Birdbox," 2018), Hala Finley ("Man with a Plan"), Tristan Riggs ("Thunder Road," 2018), Dylan Henry Lau ("Paper Tiger," 2020) and Akira Akbar ("Family Reunion").

"Equinox"

Balance the light with the dark when Season 1 of "Equinox" premieres Wednesday, Dec. 30, on Netflix. This six-episode, Danish-language miniseries tells a sinister mystery in the way that only the Scandinavians could. Complete with icy landscapes, hidden truths and unsolved disappearances, "Equinox" follows Astrid (Danica Curcic, "The Mist") on a hunt for the truth more than two decades after an incident occurred, claiming the life of her sister and her entire school class in 1999. Created by Tea Lindeburg ("Kødkataloget"), directed by Søren Balle ("Follow the Money") and produced by Apple Tree Productions' Piv Bernth ("The Killing"), the tension is heightened by the uncanny phone call of a man named Jakob (August Carter, "Land of Mine," 2015), who claims to have witnessed the disappearance of Astrid's sister over 20 years prior. Oscillating between the last year of the '90s and the present day, this supernatural series is based on the podcast "Equinox 1985," which grew to be incredibly popular in Denmark. Curcic and Carter are joined by Lars Brygmann ("Dicte: Crime Reporter"), Hanne Hedelund ("The Art of Crying," 2006), Viola Martinsen ("When the Dust Settles"), Karoline Hamm ("Juleønsket") and more throughout this thrilling saga.

hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: I was just watching the movie "Cabin in the Woods" and I recognized the red-haired control-room guy. What do I know him from?

A: Bradley Whitford is either the great "hey-it's-that-guy!" of our time, or he's Josh Lyman from "The West Wing," no question. It depends how obsessed you were with "The West Wing."

If you weren't particularly obsessed with it, or (and there must be some of you) you've never seen it, the chameleonic Whitford has disappeared into more than 100 film and TV roles since arriving on the scene back in a 1985 episode of "The Equalizer." That was an early indication of his preference for TV.

He's done some great big-screen support work (he had roles in recent hits such as 2013's "Saving Mr. Banks" and 2017's "Get Out," among dozens of others), but he seems to do better with the intimacy of the small screen.

In terms of lead roles, he reteamed with his "West Wing" boss, Aaron Sorkin, for the one-season drama "Studio 60 on the Sunset Strip" and starred in the similarly short-lived cop comedy "The Good Guys" in 2010.

But it's his guest turns that have had the most impact. He's done loads, but most notably, and recently, he did extended runs on prestige series "Transparent" and "The Handmaid's Tale," both of which netted him Emmy nominations.

Q: I was watching a show on National Geographic Channel or History in September about early American settlers in conflict with native tribes. The word "Bark" was part of the title. Are there more episodes coming?

A: You aren't alone in wanting more episodes of "Barkskins" (you were halfway there), but there's a good chance you won't get it.

National Geographic Channel officially billed this show – its first foray into fictional programming – as a "limited series," and that's supposed to mean one season, one complete story. And in that sense, "Barkskins" did not deliver.

"Cliffhangers are nothing new," TVfanatic.com reviewer Dale McGarrigle complained of the show's finale, "but usually they come at the end of a potentially ongoing series. Limited series usually include, oh, I don't know, conclusions."

While the show's final episode did indeed leave a lot of questions open, as is often the case, it seems that the "limited" tag is negotiable.

Series creator Elwood Reid said he does see this show ending, but not yet. "I think stories have finite beginnings and ends, and I definitely feel that with this story," he told pop-culture site AssignmentX.com. "I think you could accomplish a really great, satisfying story in four seasons, maybe five at the most."

It is, of course, not up to him. National Geographic hasn't made a decision either way, and it's tough to even guess. Because fictional shows aren't really the channel's core business, it's hard to say what they expect in terms of ratings. The first season averaged 704,000 viewers per episode, which isn't great, even for cable, and its ratings dropped significantly over the course of the season. However, it generated significant awards-season buzz – something the cable channel doesn't often get.
